The Uganda primary school's sports association (UPSSA) in collaboration with the ministry of education and sports is set to recruit 500 technical and officiating officials to officiate in the national primary schools and Para-games championship.

The week-long event due on May 4-14 is expected to involve athletes from 178 districts, cities, and municipalities across the nation at Rock High School in Tororo.

While addressing the local organizing committee at the school last week, UPSSA president William Bwambale called for concerted effort towards the development of the championship.

"The primary school's championship, combines both mainstream athletics and inclusive events for children with disabilities, is part of Uganda's broader effort to nurture talent at the grassroots level," he said.
